Summary

As a full-stack developer, I work with both frontend and backend technologies to create seamless, dynamic web applications. On the frontend, I specialize in frameworks like React and Next.js, building responsive interfaces that enhance user experiences. On the backend, I use Node.js and NestJS to design efficient APIs and services. I'm also skilled in working with PostgreSQL, ensuring my applications are data-driven and reliable. My experience with Docker helps me deploy applications smoothly across different environments. With a background in Software Engineering, I'm passionate about logic, problem-solving, and system design, allowing me to create efficient, scalable, and maintainable solutions.
